

This company is a national disgrace. I can think of no better example in recent memory of the need for the reinstatement of the fairness doctrine. I would also say that this should be considered exhibit A in the argument against allowing any further concentration in broadcast media ownership. I hope that this company's actions will be remembered and given serious consideration when its broadcast licenses are up for renewal. The last time I checked, these airwaves were still considered a part of the public trust.